FIELD GUIDE TO THE ORIGIN AND SPIRITUAL CONCEPTS OF THE

PLEIADIAN NEW AGE MOVEMENT THEOLOGY

[DRAFT]

A. INTRODUCTION.

1. Purpose of Guide.

This Field Guide to the Origin and Spiritual Concepts of the Pleiadian New Age Movement Theology (the "Guide") is intended to be a neutral objective identification and discussion of the facts, history, concepts, and beliefs of the subject Theology. The Guide is based on a review of prior research and writings concerning the historic religious background going back more than 4,000 years that led to the birth of New Age Thought in the 19th Century; as well as the foundational historical and theological background of New Age Thought over the past 75 years, to explain and put in context the current core concepts and beliefs of modern New Age Thought.

The Guide does not delve into contrarian or competing views to the Theology presented. It does not seek to verify or dismiss concepts, beliefs, or the logical reasoning of the Theology (although some factual, logical, and scientific inconsistencies are noted).

Instead, this Guide sets out the concepts, beliefs, and reasoning of the subject Pleiadian New Age Movement ("PNAM") within the historical background of its Theology clearly, so the concepts and beliefs are fully presented, can be considered by the reader, and provide a pathway to understand these concepts and beliefs from the perspective of the adherents of the subject Movement.

2. New Age Theology in General.

New Age Thought is not a religion and has no single founder. Although it draws from sources in the 19th Century, the "New Age" concept emerged more prominently in Western society as early as the 1950's, and then grew in scope and popularity in the 1970's and 1980's. Some bases for the "New Age" concept can be traced back even further, as mystical esoteric traditions from the 2nd Century AD, including Gnosticism, Theosophy, Freemasonry, and even some witchcraft. The components of the "New Age" concept are highly diverse, drawing from many sources including Eastern religions such as Hinduism, Buddhism, and Taoism, as well as Western esoteric practices focusing on meditation, mindfulness, and the interconnectedness of all life. Core beliefs of New Age groups include:

- Ultimate Source of Being and Reality: All things spiritual and material come from a single divine source.

- Personal Transformation and Inner Healing: A personal focus on self-realization, spiritual growth, and the development of one's inner divinity.

- Mind / Body / Spirit Integration: Health and well-being are viewed as a holistic balance of mental, physical, and spiritual aspects.

- Universal Energy and Consciousness: Existence of a universal life force / divine energy that can be harnessed for personal and world transformation.

- Reincarnation and Karma: Concepts of reincarnation / the effect of past lives / spiritual cause-and-effect.

- Syncretism: A blending of eclectic ideas from many traditions, including astrology, GAIA, crystal healing, channeling, and positive thinking.

A belief in divinity is fundamental to modern New Age Thought, although under-standings of this divinity vary between New Age groups. New Age Thought is both an inclusive and universalistic approach, which accepts differing personal perspectives on the divine as equally valid. This contradiction and vagueness as to the nature of divinity also reflects the New Age idea that divinity cannot be comprehended by the Human mind or explained in Human language. New Age literature nonetheless tries to describe the divine with common sense ideas and principals, characterizations of divinity as a part of the Human mind, the description of divinity as a form of "energy" and / or "life force", and the concept that divinity consists of key higher emotions such as love and kindness.[1]

[DRAFT]

Most New Age groups believe in an Ultimate Source from which all things originate, which is usually associated with the divine. Various creation myths have been provided in New Age literature outlining how this Ultimate Source created the universe and all of its parts. These beliefs are consistent with most New Age groups adoption and adaption of considerable Gnostic concepts and teachings, as well as limited Biblical (both Jewish and Christian) history and concepts into their Theology.[2]

In contrast, some New Age groups emphasize the idea of a universal inter-relatedness that is not always emanating from a single source. This New Age world view emphasizes holism and the idea that everything in existence is intricately connected as part of a single whole, and in doing so rejecting both the dualism of the Christian division of matter and spirit and the reductionism[I] of science.[3] Consequently, many New Age groups with this holistic interpretation of the universe, incorporate the Gaia Hypothesis into their belief system(discussed in detail below).

[DRAFT]

The idea of holistic divinity results in a common New Age belief that Humans themselves are in essence divine.

Many New Age groups have adopted the content of some science fiction novels as the historical and factual bases for their movements. One of the first Alien Species Based Human Origin Movements is derived from L. Ron Hubbard's science fiction novels (authored from the late 1930's through the 1980's) that evolved into a New Age concept of Dianetics in the 1950's (focused on mental health and self-improvement), and then evolved further into a religion known as Scientology, which continues to exist today.

More recent New Age groups have developed from different science fiction novels written by different authors and published in the late 1960's through the 1990's. Significant portions of the subject matter of these novels provides a distinctly separate Alien Species Based Human Origin story for Humans in these more recent New Age groups.

4. Science Fiction Quarterly 8-1956.

Currently there is a multitude of New Age groups and writers resulting in a great diversity in concepts and beliefs of what New Age Thought means. Navigating through and making sense of New Age Thought can be confusing at best and chaotic at times due to the diversity and contradictions in many aspects of the varied concepts and belief systems of the various New Age groups.

In response to this divergence, confusion, misunderstanding, and sometimes chaos, two New Age thinkers (Danny Thomas and Victoria Eslinger) have helped the author identify many of the core concepts and beliefs of modern New Age Thought, which this document is intended to distill into one separate original New Age group that is labeled here for the first time as the "Pleiadian New Age Movement". The name was chosen because of the key role the concept of the Pleiadian alien species has in modern New Age Thought. This alien species is believed by many New Age groups to have saved Humanity and continues to

I. "Reductionism" is the practice of analyzing and describing a complex phenomenon in terms of its simple or fundamental constituents, often claiming this provides a complete explanation - the whole is nothing but the sum of its parts.
